CTE Proven Outcomes*

- Students with greater exposure to CTE are more likely to graduate from high school, enroll in a two-year college, be employed, and earn higher wages.
- CTE is not a path away from college: Students taking more CTE classes are just as likely to pursue a four-year degree as their peers.
- Students who focus their CTE coursework are more likely to graduate high school by twenty-one percentage points compared to otherwise similar students (and they see a positive impact on other outcomes as well).
- CTE provides the greatest boost to the kids who need it most—boys, and students from low-income families.

Shaun M. Dougherty*

"In a short time and with little effort, the partnership with HarperRand allowed Vallejo Unified School District to provide CTE programming that aligned with our pathways for students to become college and career ready."
